

COVID-19 Update

A message from Theramex CEO, Robert Stewart

20th March 2020

The global spread of COVID-19 is affecting every one of us and as a leading healthcare provider, we are closely monitoring the situation and actively taking steps to support prevention.

As a company, our focus continues to be on the safety of our employees and their families and stability of supply to ensure that we can continue to meet our patients needs.

Whilst the situation remains dynamic, we do not foresee any significant short-term supply interruptions related to COVID-19 at this time. We continue to work closely with our manufacturing partners to assess any potential longer-term impacts and are proactively looking to mitigate supply risks.

We have now put in place plans to ensure business continuity across our Theramex operations. This includes guidance to our employees on health and safety measures and what they should do if they show potential symptoms of COVID-19 or have contact with anyone who does. We have also implemented policies on working from home, limiting non-critical business travel and enforcing strict isolation if employees have recently travelled to or from a UK government identified affected international area.

Our thoughts are with those suffering with the illness and we give enormous thanks to those on the front line, including doctors, nurses, researchers, public health experts globally who are doing so much to help the world deal with this pandemic.

Robert Stewart, CEO
